7. Nature And Summary Of The Proceedings

This is a civil action alleging patent infringement under the patent laws of the United States. The patent infringement claims in this civil action were filed in the Eastern District of Texas under 35 U.S.C. § 271. Resolution of these civil claims will not result in damages paid to any state in the U.S. or result in financial benefit to any state in the U.S. Moreover, the state of Texas, the forum state where the Eastern District of Texas is located, has not enforced any split-recovery statutes.¹ No claims asserted in the present proceeding could lead to the application of a split-recovery statute.

ParTec AG and BF exaQC AG (collectively, “Plaintiffs”) allege that Microsoft Corporation (“Microsoft”) infringes U.S. Patent Nos. 10,142,156; 11,934,883; and 11,537,442 (the “Asserted Patents”); by making, using, inducing other to make or use, offering to sell, and/or importing such products into the United States. Microsoft denies that it either directly or indirectly infringes any of the Asserted Patents. Microsoft further asserts that the Asserted Patents are invalid, and Microsoft asserts that various legal doctrines and statutes bar Plaintiffs’ requested relief.

Technical information related to the Asserted Patents as well as the alleged conception and reduction to practice of the Asserted Patents are pertinent to at least the issue of patent validity in United States Courts. LRZ was among the participating members of the DEEP supercomputer projects that ParTec² has allegedly been involved in and relate to the alleged inventions of the Asserted Patents. See Attachments H, K; see also Attachment L ¶¶ 26–29. For example, Plaintiffs claim that these projects have included the development and implementation of the dynamic Modular System Architecture (dMSA) that Plaintiffs allege to embody the claimed inventions of the Asserted Patents. See Attachment K. Further, Plaintiffs claimed that ParTec developed and delivered its ParaStation software for implementation in these supercomputer projects. See id. For example, in the first DEEP Project³, Plaintiffs claim ParTec delivered the ParaStation Cluster Suite and ParaStation Global MPI, as the cluster operating system software for the DEEP supercomputer prototype. During the DEEP Project, LRZ was among partners which contributed to the design and development of a cluster-booster computing system alleged to be the claimed inventions of the Asserted Patents by Plaintiffs. See Attachment H. Mr. Herbert Huber is the Head of High Performance Systems Division at LRZ and was involved in the DEEP supercomputer projects with ParTec.⁴ As such, Mr. Herbert Huber is knowledgeable about ParTec’s involvement in the projects and the design and development of the computing system claimed to be ParTec’s inventions.

In light of the above, Microsoft believes that Mr. Huber possesses information relevant to this litigation and seeks from Germany the chance to obtain deposition testimony from Mr. Huber. Indeed, Microsoft deems that the information sought may not be available from any other source.

² “ParTec” shall mean Plaintiff ParTec AG, or formerly ParTec Cluster Competence Center GmbH, including without limitation all of its corporate locations, and all predecessors, predecessors-in-interest, subsidiaries, parents, and affiliates, and all past or present directors, officers, agents, representatives, employees, consultants, attorneys, entities acting in joint venture, licensing agreements, or partnership relationships with ParTec, and others acting on behalf of ParTec.

³ “DEEP Project(s)” shall mean any Dynamical Exascale Entry Platform project funded by the European Commission, including without limitation DEEP, DEEP-ER, DEEP-EST, and DEEP-SEA projects.

For the reasons discussed in this letter, the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Texas believes that this Request is being made in the interests of justice. Microsoft believes that the information sought may not be available from any other source.

Attached as Attachment A is a copy of the Protective Order. In United States District Courts, a protective order prevents the disclosure of sensitive information except to certain individuals under certain conditions, as governed by the terms of the order. All confidential information provided in assistance to this litigation would be subject to this order, and used solely for purposes of the litigation.
